

I listen to local radio stations and read our local newspaper as a way to keep informed. We do not have TV. I do not appreciate that these local stations with live programming are disappearing, and that large corporations with an agenda and money, like Sinclair, are buying up our radio bands. It seems that PBS and one local listener supported station are the only ones left for us who want local control. What is going on? Where is the FCC in all this? Democracy is for all of us, not just the big guys. Please consider the crucial importance of democratic access to the airwaves and the critical need to preserve journalistic independence. Thank you, Elizabeth Karrer of Glen Ellen, CA.
